

EUROPEAN UNIVERSITY ACCREDITATIONS

Press Release

18th May 2010, Geneva - European University (EU) is celebrating its two recent accreditations from renowned bodies ACBSP and IACBE, which reflect the quality of education offered at the university for the last 35 years.

ACBSP is the first association recognized by the US Governmental Council for Higher Educations (CHEA), and is renowned for accrediting business schools and programs with a focus on teaching excellence, particularly on what occurs in the classroom while encouraging scholarly research.

Business program accreditation by the IACBE assures the high quality of European University's business programs. Accreditation has been completed by trained evaluators who ensure that the IACBE's standards are being met in eight key areas: outcomes assessment, strategic planning, curriculum, faculty, scholarly and professional activities, resources, internal/external relationships, and educational innovation.

Both accreditation bodies have more than 800 accredited institutions in the US and the world over. These accreditations are a testament to the caliber of our faculty members, and are of great value to our current students as well as 23,000 alumni around the world who can emphasize this significant benefit in their present and future careers.
